

In my efficiency chart you can the orange "Series 1" line represents the iterative method while the grey "Series 2" line represents recursion. You can clearly see that the iterative method is much more efficient, but with a more efficient recursion method I'm sure the difference between the two could be much closer.

